Consequences of changes in the water cycle for ground water and surface water fed ecosystems: eco-hydrological approaches
Guest Editors: M.J. Wassen, A.P. Grootjans, G. van Wirdum, B.D. Wheeler

Introduction:
Ecohydrology: an interdisciplinary approach for wetland management and restoration
M.J. Wassen & A.P. Grootjans 1–4

A comparison of fens in natural and artificial landscapes
M.J. Wassen, R. van Diggelen, L. Wolejko & J.T.A. Verhoeven 5–26

Hydro-geochemical analysis of a degraded dune slack
A.P. Grootjans, F.P. Sival & P.J. Stuyfzand 27–38

Dynamics of seasonal bicarbonate supply in a dune slack: effects on organic matter, nitrogen pool and vegetation succession
F.P. Sival & A.P. Grootjans 39–50

A local rich fen fed by calcareous seepage from an artificial river water infiltration system
D. Boeye, V. Van Haesebroeck, B. Verhagen, B. Delbaere, M. Hens & R.F. Verheyen 51–58

The effect of drainage and management on peat chemistry and nutrient deficiency in the former Jegrznia-floodplain (NE-Poland)
H. de Mars, M.J. Wassen & W.H.M. Peeters 59–72

The restoration of species-rich heathland communities in the Netherlands
A.J.M. Jansen, M.C.C. de Graaf & J.G.M. Roelofs 73–88

Vegetation and environmental conditions in recently restored wetlands in the prairie pothole region of the USA
S.M. Galatowitsch & A.G. van der Valk 89–99

Restoration experiments in middle European wet terrestrial ecosystems: an overview
J. Pfadenhauer & F. Klötzli 101–115

Letter from the Editor-in-Chief 117

Peatland distribution along a north-south transect in the Mackenzie River Basin in relation to climatic and environmental gradients
B.J. Nicholson, L.D. Gignac & S.E. Bayley 119–133

Vertical vegetation zones along 30° N latitude in humid East Asia
J.-Y. Fang, M. Ohsawa & T. Kira 135–149

Predicting patterns of vascular plant species richness with composite variables: a meso-scale study in Finnish Lapland
R.K. Heikkinen 151–165

Formation and closure of canopy gaps in the rain forest at Nouragues, French Guiana
P.J. van der Meer & F. Bongers 167–179

Multivariate analysis of plant communities in the Narok district, Kenya: The influence of environmental factors and human disturbance
Z.A. Ogutu 181–189

Tree regeneration patterns on Mount Usu, northern Japan, since the 1977–78 eruptions
S. Tsuyuzaka & M. Haruki 191–198

Book review 199
